
Even though health, wealth and financial services products have become more sophisticated customers struggle with the channel. Too many overlapping and costly. These products require a high touch and the conversion needs rate needs to be higher to support it.

Who is the target market for this?	What needs do the target market have?
What ideas will help to solve this?	Describe in more detail each solution.